Senior's Outrage Goes From Simmer To Boil

San Bernardino Westside senior citizen's outrage has simmered to a boil over the proposed closing of the Westside Drop-in-Center, the West Highland Utilities Payment Center, and the Dorothy Inghram Library located in the Public Enterprise Building. This is in response to the City's need to find over two million dollars in revenue to balance the budget.

The issue of the cuts and closures has left senior citizens who are the highest users of the center outraged that again the budget will be balanced on the backs of poor, aged, minority and youth.

Closing Of Utilities Center Tabled

The Drop-in-Center is gone, the Dorothy Inghram Library may also be gone, but the Utilities Center may have a reprieve thanks to Carl Clemons a senior citizen activist who met with the City Council and the Redevelopment staff to change their minds about closing the vital center.

Clemons addressed the City Council because no one else would speak out or speak up for the center. "Councilwoman Valerie Pope-Ludlam, didn't say a word to save the center when I went down to the meeting," said Clemons.

"The cuts have hit the Westside very hard," said Clemons. "The Boys and Girls Club will also be cutback if the proposal passes," he said. The Library Board will make the decision on which facilities will be hardest hit. Their cuts amount to over $300,000.

Because of Clemons' action the city council voted on a motion made by Jess Flores, to have Craig Graves, city treasurer, come up with an alternative.

Clemons, however, has come up with a couple of plans. The Utilities Center is not a liability to the city he contends, it serves 3,000 persons per month, collects the money for 6,300 bills (on average) and receives $18,000 per year from the utilities companies who pay 25 cents per bill for the handling by the city. One of his plans calls for a 25 cent increase in the utilities share, thus doubling the revenue for the center and saving the close to $46,000 that the center costs.

"I am tired of whenever the city get in a budget crunch the first thing they do is cut the Westside," said Clemons.

The Westside is the most needy community in San Bernardino, nothing major, except for a few homes have been built here. However it continues to suffer from a lack of city and county services. It is a grave concern to community residents and this issue is still another in a long line of crimes against the Westside.

Councilwoman Ludlam could not be reached by press-time. Clemons says she is calling a meeting at the Public Enterprise Center, today, November 15, at 1:00.

THE CLEMONS PROPOSAL

1. Increase the handling fees by .25 per utility stub for all utility companies serviced. Revenue could be increased by $18,000 per year. 2. Charge a service fee of .50¢ to pay utility bills. Revenue would increase another $18,000 per year. 3. RDA could waive the rent fee for office space. City pays $3,900 per year. 4. SAVINGS: $18,000 18,000 3,900 $39,900 HANDLING FEES SERVICE CHARGE RENT WAIVED TOTAL SAVINGS

FACTS CONCERNING THE UTILITY CENTER

1. 3,000 person's serviced a month.(average) 2. 6,300 bills handled at an average of .25¢ a piece and average about $1,500 a month or $19,000.00 a year. 3. Total cost including our salaries, supplies and rent (which goes to RDA) projected $59,000.00. 4. One employee will be placed in vacated position in treasurer's office, other employee hopeful.(smile) 5. All revenue derived here go to the City Treasurer. 6. These services have been offered 19 years.

OTHER POINTS 1. We have continuously up graded the services. 2. We are bonded. 3. We are located where elderly people may feel safe. 4. The Major Issue, "the rates" charged Utility Companies "has not" been raised from .25 a stub in 10 years. If it were doubled the revenue would be $38,000.00 and outstanding cost would be $21,000.00 instead of $40,000 as projected at this point. 5. Check Cashing places charge a fee to accept utility bills. 6. Some charge extra for stamps. 7. Most are located in high for traffic places 8. None are bonded. 9. Their receipts are not sent in daily and often lost. This election showed people are tired of the old and the poor paying for this city, county, state and nations progress. This place is used by people all over the city. 10. GTE and they will tell you to come here because of our efficiency.

Inland Empire Gets New Area Code

Area code 714's number is almost up.

Pacific Bell and GTE California announced that area code 714 is running out of telephone numbers, and a new area code must be introduced in January 1993.

The new area code is 909. "It's another sign of the explosive population and technology growth in Orange County and the Inland Empire," said Pacific Bell Area Vice President Reed L. Royalty. "With area code 909, we can meet the continuing need for residential and business telephone lines as well as telephone numbers for cellular phones, pagers, computer modems and facsimile machines."

Area code 714 has 774 available prefixes. A prefix is the first three digits in a seven-digit telephone number. As of November 1990, 604 were in use, leaving 170. Typically, 46 prefixes are used each year. At that rate, the supply of prefixes would run out by the end of 1994.

Today, area code 714 serves approximately 4,756,000 telephone lines.

Karen Shaw, GTE California state director of public affairs, said boundaries for the new area code will be announced in January 1991, after customers have an opportunity to evaluate three plans in public meetings to be held later this month.

The first plan would: Divide area code 714 at the Orange, Los Angeles, Riverside and San Bernardino county lines. Orange County would keep area code 714. Riverside and San Bernardino counties would receive area code 909. Big Bear Lake, Big Bear and Running Springs, which are served by Continental Telephone Company, and Claremont, Pomona and Diamond Bar in Los Angeles County would be served by area code 909.

Shaw said both GTE California and Pacific Bell recommend the first plan.

"It makes the most sense for our customers," she said. "It uses natural borders without separating cities or communities of interest."

The second option would: Divide area code 714 at the southeast corner of Irvine. North and Central Orange County would use area code 714. Area code 909 would serve South Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

The last option would: "Overlay" area code 909 across the same geography presently served by area code 714. Under this plan, customers ordering new telephone service would receive area code 909.

Shaw said the new area code will not affect the price of calls.

"No matter where area code 909 is introduced, the cost of calls within or across the new boundaries will not change," she said. "Customers who receive the new area code will keep their existing seven-digit phone numbers."

Royalty said customers will have an opportunity to evaluate all the plans at public meetings to be held Nov. 26 through 30 in Ontario, Brea, Riverside, San Bernardino, Irvine and Hemet.

PUSH Strives For Better Relationship Between Nike & African Americans

Amid the explosive headline portraying Operation PUSH's request to meet with NIKE and the subsequent boycott as something analogous to "blackmail" and the cries of "extortion," "coercion," and "anti-capitalism," one can easily lose the true meaning of what we at PUSH hope to accomplish in meeting with NIKE. Our objective is to establish a fair, reciprocal and mutually beneficial economical relationship between NIKE and the African American and minority communities which have helped make NIKE the giant it is in the athletic footwear industry.

Countless organizations before us have used their collective voice to influence corporate behavior. Environmental groups have put pressure on the fast food industry to use an alternate method of packaging products that does not harm the environment, health groups have asked for warning messages on tobacco and alcohol products telling of potential harmful effects, and the American consumer (through our preference for foreign made cars) have pressured the American automakers to build fuel efficient automobiles. PUSH used its voice to speak on matters of concern to the African American and minority community.

Our current focus is on removing the "zero" factor in corporate America which is evident in companies such as NIKE, where you find ZERO African Americans and minorities on the board of directors and in key executive positions. ZERO African Americans and minority entrepreneurs have contractual agreements to provide legal, accounting, insurance, banking, and other necessary professional services. ZERO dollars are spent with African American and minority advertising agencies, newspapers, magazines, radio and television stations. We are using our voice and our dollars to help remove these apartheid corporate policies.

When PUSH fights for more business for African American owned businesses the net result is more jobs for African Americans. Statistics have shown that the majority of jobs created in the private sector originate from small businesses. When banks begin to grow because of larger deposits they need to hire more tellers, account executives, customer service clerks, data entry operators, etc. The same effect occurs in law firms, accounting firms, insurance agencies, and in every other type of business. In addition, when African Americans have representation on corporate boards and in key executive positions, we are better positioned to favorably impact corporate policies and directions. From voter registration, job placement, grievance resolution, worker displacement, educational advancement and economic empowerment efforts that we work to help level the playing field so that competent and qualified minority businesses can more effectively compete in larger business world. We negotiate on behalf of minority businesses in those industries where we have significant consumer buying power.

We follow a process developed by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and carried on by PUSH founder Rev. Jesse L. Jackson. We have always had honorable relationships. We do our search and then we educate the community and the company. We then attempt to negotiate a fair, reciprocal and mutually beneficial economic relationship. We only boycott if negotiations fail and should that happen, we always end with reconciliation.

PUSH chose to focus on the athletic shoe industry because of African American consumer patterns and because of the growing popularity of athletic shoes in our communities. We began good faith negotiations with NIKE and were looking forward to the next round of meetings when NIKE suddenly and unexpectedly accused PUSH of being in collusion with Reebok. The call for the boycott was initiated after communications broke down following NIKE's refusal to meet any further.

Our goal and our focus continues to be African American representation at all levels in corporate American including the procurement and contracting for goods and services. We have been successful in negotiating with organizations such as Coors, Burger King Corporation, Ford Motor Company, Seven-Up, and Coca-Cola. These companies found that it does make good business sense to develop stronger economic relationships with the African American and minority communities. Our hope is that NIKE will reach that same conclusion allowing us to call off this boycott and to continue to serve our community in other areas.

64% VOTE AGAINST U. S. POLITICS

Only about 36% of the voting age population bothered to vote in the midterm election. The non-voting majority has thrown its hands up and conceded control of the country to a growing incompetent pool of politicians.

Although it was the lowest turnout since 1942 the powerful wedge issue was — as usual — race.

Harvey Gantt a very decent man who ran a very decent campaign, lost the Senate race to Jesse Helms in North Carolina, underestimated the staying power of racism.

In a post-mortem analysis, Gantt said he underestimated the effect race would have on the outcome of his 53% to 47% loss to Helms. "We obviously may have miscalculated on how much it (race) would play a role."

Asked if he thought he would have won if he were White.

Gantt said. "I'm never going to put myself in the position of saying that the color of my skin is a drawback to whatever I want to do."

I don't think the issue is or ever was the color of Gantt's skin, rather it is the condition of the minds of some Whites. Gantt's losing is no reflection on his being Black. He may, perhaps be a little naive about some White people's ability to judge a Black person fairly.

I said privately before the election that Gantt would lose to Helms. I came to that conclusion not because of any shortcoming on the part of Gantt but because election after election proves that Whites lie to pollsters when a Black faces-off against a White.

Many Whites will say they are undecided or even that they intend to vote for the Black, But election after election, we find that these are closet-White votes that the White candidate can count on.

Because the polls called the Gantt-Helms race even. I knew that racism had sealed Gantt's fate. And as 9% of the Blacks voted for white supremacist David Duke in Louisiana recently, 6% of the Blacks in North Carolina voted against Gantt and for Helms' racist campaign and 13% voted for Gov. Guy Hunt of Alabama who wants Black colleges abolished.

Significantly, Republican House candidates won 22% of the votes cast by Blacks — twice as many as in 1982.

In Cincinnati, Charles Luken, a White, beat Kennedy Blackwell, a Black. in the mayoral race according to one source because of "his history of support from Cincinnati's Black voters." Luken is a Democrat and Blackwell is a Republican.

But one Black Republican won his race for congress in Waterbury, Connecticut in a district that is only 4% Black. Gary Frances becomes the first Black Republican elected a voting member of the House of Representatives in 52 years.

In D. C., Jesse Jackson who avoided losing the mayor's race by not running, was elected to the questionable post of of shadow lobbyist to the United States Senate — a long way from the President of the United States. At least he's been elected to something, he can now boast.

Jackson's "good friend," Marion Barry, lost his race for an at-large seat on the City Council. In the closing days, however, Barry had some very nasty things to say about the kind of "friendship" that one can expect from Jackson.

The political turbulence in this midterm election was everywhere: friend against friend, Black against White, Blacks for racists, Blacks for Blacks, Whites for Whites.

No wonder the majority of Americans — 64% — decided to stay at home and ignore the entire mess.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I am an African-American woman, 27 years of age. I would like to address a problem that is plaguing African-American women. The problem is "the weave thing."

What is "the weave thing"?

"The weave thing" refers to the increasing number of African-American women who insist on sewing other folk's dead hair on their heads. This is a concept I simply don't understand. Why on earth do women feel the need to do this? Why would a woman spend two or more hours in a hair salon and spend $200 or more to do this?

It is downright embarrassing to look at an African-American woman's head full of fake hair. First of all I have yet to see a weave that didn't scream "WEAVE!" It is obvious to any person with half a brain that the hair isn't authentic. It looks so false and unkempt! And when I see an African-American woman "toss" her fake "hair" the way a white woman "tosses" her hair, it makes me feel very sad for the sister, because she has been brainwashed into thinking that an African-American woman isn't attractive if she doesn't have a flowing mane of hair.

I just wish that African-Americans would stop with the blue, green and gray contact lenses, hair relaxers and false hair and love themselves the way they are.

Sincerely Lisa Kenney Brooklyn, New York

Dear Editor,

Billions of dollars of tranquilizers such as Valium are prescribed for stress and anxiety each year. These mind-altering drugs proved to be addictive and a growing number of "horror stories" indicate they can actually increase stress and reduce a person's ability to cope with problems. There are strong links between stress and the heavy use illegal drugs and alcohol. The high levels of stress in our society is one of the biggest barriers in winning the War On Drugs. There are ways for individuals to eliminate stress and gain better control of their lives without drugs. Solutions in the newly released book, Scjentology: The Fundamentals of Thought by L. Ron Hubbard are based on extensive research and offer modern solutions to the shell-shock and emotional fallout most people experience in our fast-paced, crime-ridden world. Hubbard was the first to prove how a change of environment could alleviate stress and other adverse conditions, a simple solution that today is finding a place in the medical world. Keep this in mind and remember that stress is just a lack of control over a situation. This can be handled... we've all handled it before!

Sincerely, Sharyn Runyon

Dear Cheryl Hardy Brown,

What a pleasant surprise seeing an article in your newspaper on Bertram Lee, dated October 18, 1990! The article was well written. Congratulations and thank you very much. I plan to send a copy of the article back to Chicago.

We know Bert well because he was married to our niece, Edith. She died suddenly several years ago. His two daughters from this marriage visit California often. Indeed, Bert has accomplished much and we as a family are very proud of him and join others in congratulating him on this latest accomplishment.

Sincerely, MELVA LEDFORD COOKE

Dear Editor,

I have subscribed to the Black Voice News paper for many years and have enjoyed reading the helpful information your instrument has provided. However, I was "terribly disappointed with your paper when a member of the church called my attention to an article a few weeks ago regarding "RAP Lyrics." The article in question was against "obtrusive and repulsive" language used in songs by professional RAP groups.

I couldn't agree with you more, but I was appalled over the fact that you did not deem the lyrics disgusting enough so as not to print them. Because many people do not understand the lyrics of Rap music, but consider it just loud noise, therefore what is being spoken in the song is not clear to them. Although some young and old do recognize the words, but to print such horrendous vulgarity in a paper where every reader can see, hear and understand was, in my opinion, unethical and unchristian.

Mrs. Editor, I know our youth and adults should be informed of what is available to our young people, but to Spell IT OUT in print was something I could not "digest". I asked that those papers be taken off the rack at our church. Some things I was taught, are too "low-down" vulgar to say.

If your intentions were to shock your reading audience, you certainly succeeded in doing just that, but it would have been better to have called a special meeting and expressed your concerns with copies of the Lyrics to pass out to everyone, ifeel. Than to expose such "tasteless" language, to anyone, young or old who read your paper.

If any "real" parent had asked their child to read the Black Voice paper to them and they heard such language being read, the parent would have immediately snatched the paper from the child in total disbelief.

Mrs. Brown, I applaud your endeavor to raise our level of awareness and trying to shock our communities' consciousness to what's happening; but, please be more tactful in your approach.

Rev. Franklin Knight

Dear Editor

The recent veto of the 1990 Civil Rights Bill by President Bush, and the KKK march in Washington D.C. that followed, should impress upon the Black and Latino communities that Black vs. Latino fighting such as apparently occurred at Cajon High School is totally counter-productive and destructive to the cause of overthrowing white supremacy. It shows there is an enemy to both Blacks and Latinos that far overshadows any gang affiliation or rivalry-therefore the call must go out to all Black and Latino youth to abandon gangs and band together to fought the greatest "gang" war of all-the war against white supremacist oppression, and for Black and Latino freedom from oppression. The West Coast All-Stars got it right when they say "We are all in the same gang"-believe it!

It's time to boycott Coors beer again. The reason--check out the remarks made by owner William K. Coors on February 24, 1984, provided to us courtesy of People Against Racist Terror based in Burbank in their bimonthly newsletter Turning The Tide "One of the best things the slave traders did for you was to drag your ancestors over here in chains..." also "It's not that the dedication among blacks is less—in fact, it's greater. They lacked the intellectual capacity to succeed." What???—somebody must have dumped radioactive waste in his "pure" Rocky Mountain spring water. So now you know not to BUY COORS!

Chris Ellis.

African American Civil Rights A State Senators View

By California State Senate President Pro Tempore, David Robert

The decade of the 1990's will be a crucial test of the resolve of those committed to creating a more just and equitable society and to the fight against racism, sexism and other types of bias in our country.

Local, state, and federal action will be necessary to assure that our society moves toward greater equity, fairness and opportunity, and not toward disintegration and an unwarranted growth of an underclass, permanently locked out of the economic mainstream. To help guarantee a brighter future for all, the federal government must lead the way. It must put the force of the White House, Congress and the courts behind legislation outlining this nation's commitment to civil rights.

I am committed to doing everything in my power to help federal authorities recognize their responsibilities. That is why I authored Senate Joint Resolution 62, which would express the California Legislature's support of the 1990 Civil Rights Act now pending before Congress.

Senate Joint Resolution (SJR 62) memorializes President George Bush and Congress to enact the Civil Rights Act of 1990. The resolution passed the California Senate. The bill has been approved by Congress. The resolution stands as a mandate from California calling for stronger civil rights protection. Here in California, the Civil Rights Act of 1990 is especially crucial.

California's African American Population is the fastest growing in the nation and merits the protections against racial discrimination and promotion of employment opportunities the 1990 Civil Rights Act would help generate.

The Civil Rights Act of 1990 is a response to recent Supreme Court rulings that many feel have set civil rights laws back some twenty years. Last year, five Supreme Court decisions narrowed the scope of Title VII prohibiting employment discrimination.

The rulings marked an abrupt departure from the Supreme Court's prior history of protecting the civil rights of our citizens. In fact, given the recent rulings concerning civil rights, it would seem that a full scale retreat on civil rights is underway.

The Civil Rights Act of 1990, would overturn the recent decisions of the Supreme Court and reinstate previous interpretations that have been on the books over twenty years.

The legislation contains provisions that will ensure more effective civil rights enforcement, for example the 1990 Civil Rights Act would provide monetary relief to all victims of intentional discrimination. Presently, monetary compensation is only available to victims of racial discrimination. The Act would also require employers to justify discriminatory employment practices as "essential to job performance" and to study the impact of their hiring practices on women and minorities.

The importance of the Civil Rights Act if 1990 cannot be overstated. Unfortunately, we live in a society where racial and gender bias still exists. Twenty-six years ago, our lawmakers recognized this discrimination and passed the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

This act is part of fulfilling the American dream by creating a society where racism and sexism are things of the past.

The Civil Rights Act of 1990 continues the tradition of condemning bigotry and offering equal opportunity and compensation to all people.

Here in California, the Civil Rights Act of 1990 is especially important. As we enter the 21st century, California stands at a crossroads. We can either stand or multi-culturalism, access, and opportunity or we can watch California become a state where minorities and women face discrimination and have little control over the power structures that determine their lives.

My resolution is a message to our President that the California Senate stands against discrimination and will fight it with the seriousness and severity it deserves.

On June 26, 1990, Nelson Mandela received a standing ovation when he addressed the joint session of the U.S. Congress. Mandela stood as a testament to justice and equality for all people, regardless of race. Let us hope that Congress and President Bush took Mr. Mandela's message to heart and will commit themselves to ending racial discrimination right her in the United States and pass the Civil Rights Act of 1990.

Black Women Are More Overweight

More than twice as many Black women in a college-educated population were overweight than a similar group of white women, according to an article by Lucille Adams-Campbell in the Journal of the National Medical Association (NMA) for August, 1990.

The title of the article is "Body Fat Distribution Patterns and Blood Pressure in Black and White Women."

The study population consisted of a random sample of women, 93 Black and 88 white, first-year U.S. students attending the University of Pittsburgh Pa.; Paine and August College, Augusta, Ga.; and Georgia Southern College in Statesboro, Ga. during the 1985 academic year. Also included were all women (124) attending Nursing and Midwifery School at the University of Benin, Benin City, Nigeria.

"The mean ages for Black and white women were 18.6 and 18.9 years, respectively. Among the Nigerian women, the mean age was 22.4."

The study also found that 1.5 times more black women in the U.S. were overweight than Nigerian women. "In addition, Black U.S. women were 5.6 times more likely to be obese than white women, and 8 times more than their Nigerian counterparts. These findings are similar to those reported in National Health and Nutrition Examination Surveys (N.H.A.N.E.S. I and II) for Black and white U.S. women.

The definitions for obesity and overweight were derived from the anthropometric measurements based on the calculation of body mass index. Black women in the U.S. had the largest mean body mass index and, in general, had a greater predominance, of upper body fat than whites, Nigerian women had more upper body obesity than either Black or white American women in the study.

"As it is hypothesized that upper body obesity is associated with increased cardiovascular risk, then Black Women (both U.S. and Nigerian) are at greater risk than their white counterparts. In the present study, a similar positive association was revealed for systolic pressure only. For diastolic blood pressure, there were virtually no significant associations observed in relation to body mass among women.

The author concluded that: "Among young Black U.S. women, being obese or overweight is a major health problem, even among college-educated women."

The National Medical Association, headquartered in Washington, D.C., was founded in 1895 and today represents the nation's more than 16,000 minority physicians.

Our Bodies

S.A.T. STRESS

Dear Dr. Levister: October and November is S.A.T. time. We have stairstep daughters and each year one of our S.A.T. takers becomes anxious, irritable and experiences bouts of diarrhea and vomiting. How can we help them during this mentally stressful time? Concerned parents.

Dear Concerned: Preparation is the key! On the average our youngsters score 200 points lower than their White counterparts. Here is how you can help your child prepare:

(1) Tell her to recognize the test for what it is. It is a narrow test of vocabulary, mathematics and paragraph reading.

(2) Make her "test wise". Have her practice under a simulation of test conditions - timer set, no talking, no music or television.

(3) Help her get smart. If she can eliminate one or more choices as wrong, her odds go up - but studies show that girls and people of color hesitate to make an educated guess.

(4) Be sure she studies question types. Most kids don't see analogies or quantitative comparisons in every day life; help her learn to recognize them before test day.

(5) Get HELP if she needs it. Have her take an S.A.T.

Great American Smoke-Out Campaign Kick-off

On November 15, 1990 at 6:00 p.m. at the Hilton Hotel, 285 E. Hospitality Lane, San Bernardino, a presentation will be given by Robert G. Robinson, as part of the kick-off for this year's Great American Smoke-out Campaign in Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

Through a community coalition Dr. Robinson successfully spearheaded the effort to blockade R. J.

Reynolds Tobacco Company from test-marketing a new cigarette targeted to the Black population of Philadelphia. The menthol-flavored cigarette called Uptown was proven to contain high levels of tar and nicotine. According to the Coalition, "this fight was about the life and the quality of life. Cigarettes cause more death and disease among Blacks than any other minority group in the country. It is immoral and irresponsible that R. J. Reynolds target this community."

In protest of this new cigarette, Dr. Robinson recruited the support of organizations including the American Cancer Society, the American Lung Association, and the Philadelphia City Health Department in addition to Dr. Louis W. Sullivan, the U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services.

Dr. Robinson's speaking engagements include: Riverside County Health Department, Loma Linda School of Public Health, Jerry L. Pettis Veterans Memorial Hospital, and Riverside County Hospital Medical Center.

coaching program, one that uses real - not imitation - tests. One that develops test taking skills and content focused on the S.A.T. exam.

(6) Tell her to be prepared for bias. Some S.A.T. questions reflect a class bias. Tell her not to get mad.

(7) Stress good test conditions. Tell your child that if the room is too cold, hot, noisy or poorly lit she should complain to the teacher in charge. She has the right to fair test conditions.

(8) Have your child aim high. If your child's score does not match the expectations or target colleges state as average don't discourage them. Let them know you love them. Don't "apply down". Schools accept applicants with a wide range of scores.

(9) Help her resist labeling. Grades, not S.A.T. scores, are the best single predictor of how well your child will do college.

(10) During this period of preparation keep your child involved in some form of moderate physical activities, such as swimming, tennis or jogging. One week before the test encourage your child to review their progress and discuss their "current state of mind".

Remember, some anxiety and even occasional bouts of diarrhea are normal, healthy signs of good stress (the fight or flight phenomena). Reward their hard work with a new shirt, blouse or earrings to be worn during the test.

The night prior to the test day, get plenty of rest, drink lots of fluids. The morning of the test have a light but wholesome breakfast. Wear comfortable clothes that make you feel and look good.

A word of caution: If your child's behavior shows signs of severe depression or physical illness, seek medical attention.

Marla Gibbs Says: "Progress Is Always Being Made"

Marla Gibbs, the television actress and producer, urged participants at the 15th anniversary ceremonies of "The Skanner" newspaper, to remember that "Progress is always being made, even in the middle of chaos!"

In a well-received speech, Ms. Gibbs stressed that minorities build whatever is needed, using whatever resources they have, "To make our communities what we want them to be."

Ms. Gibbs said: "My quest is to rebuild the Los Angeles' Black community. That's what I am about."

The star of the popular television series, "227," acknowledged Los Angeles' major problems of drugs, street gangs and "13 and 14 year-old children having children."

She said: "These are our children. We must teach them and make certain that the schools teach them what they need to know to compete in this world."

The publisher of "The Skanner" newspaper, Bernie Foster, had especially wanted Ms. Gibbs to speak with the more than 600 guests gathered at the newly-built Portland Convention Center. "I knew of Ms. Gibbs' inspirational development efforts in Los Angeles and wanted my readers and supporters to hear about them also," Foster said.

The popular television series, "227," has been cancelled, Ms. Gibbs told the group, adding, that she's happy though that "227" ran for five full years. That was God's blessing and I thank him for it. Now I'm looking forward to whatever is coming — I know it will be a blessing."

A native of Chicago, Ms. Gibbs moved to Los Angeles in 1968, and appeared in numerous acting roles before joining "The Jeffersons" television series in 1975. For 11 seasons, her role in "The Jeffersons" as Florence, the maid, became an indelible part of television history.

In 1982 Ms. Gibbs founded the Crossroads Arts Academy, "a school for nurturing talent for young and old" in Los Angeles' inner city. The Academy has produced several highly acclaimed productions, including the play, "227," the theatrical precursor of the television series. Ms. Gibbs starred as a housewife on the series until it was cancelled earlier this year.

While the Crossroads Arts Academy teaches — and provides a forum for — persons involved in the entertainment field, Ms. Gibbs said the school also instructs students in how to earn a living within urban growth areas.

"We are training waiters and waitresses too, since the hotel industry is booming," she said.

"So many things can be done right where you are," Ms. Gibbs said, "We have the ability to rebuild our communities."

"The Skanner" presented its Corporate Involvement Award to Thomas Schropshire, retired Senior Vice President, Miller Brewing Company. Other

awards were presented for persons who have distinguished themselves in the areas of health, education, business, community affairs and youth programs.

A recent congratulatory letter from President Bush to Foster, and his wife, "The Skanner" editor, Bobbie Dore Foster, said: "I can well appreciate how much your publication has meant to the people of your community over the years. It has been the 'family album' and a link to the world, a record of happenings, great and small, that people care about and want to remember."

Giving Homage Where It Is Due: The Executive Leadership Council, a network of black executives, recently handed out their coveted "Heritage Award" to Naylor Fitzhugh, who is only the second black to earn an MBA at Harvard Business School. Ironically, Fitzhugh didn't get to use it until 1965 (32 years later), when he was hired by Pepsico and went on to lead the first corporate ad effort directed at black consumers. The 80-year old business pioneer was recognized for his "lifelong contributions to African-American business advancement."

Executive Sweet: Sylvia Rhone has been named as a CEO of East West America, a new division of Atlantic Records in New York City. With this appointment, Rhone becomes the first black woman to head a major record label. Formerly senior vice president/GM of Atlantic Records, she had been the highest-ranking female at Atlantic, and the highest-ranking black female in the record industry. "It would be nice to say that whether you're black or white or a man or a woman doesn't make a difference, but it does," says Rhone, who signed on with Atlantic in 1985 as director of national black music promotion. "I've worked in this business for 15 years, and I've had to work harder than my male counterparts, so it feels like it's a small victory."

Black Lawyers Get An Edge: The Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC), the nation's bailout agency, has extended a giant opportunity for minorities and women to get a much bigger share of their outside legal work, valued at $500 million annually. The program, which was developed in 1988, is affording minority-owned firms, the kinds of work they had been previously denied. The program is set up to counter the fact that minorities and women have made little progress among the country's top law firms. Congress added steam in the establishment of the program with the implementation of its 1988 bailout law, instructing the RTC to encourage minorities and women to bid for the agency's outside work. Additionally, the program is giving big white law firms a reason to recruit minority lawyers so that they too, can share in the bonanza. (However, to counter the hiring of "token blacks," the RTC requires proof that minorities and women are actually doing the work). Aside from fueling a recruitment strategy, the program is also encouraged by the number of big firms that are now copartners with minority firms to take part in the opportunity. Average contracts are estimated to be in the $2-3 million range (yearly).

Speaking of money...$20 - $25,000 weekly is what former rap star Will Smith of "The Fresh Prince of Bel Air" is reportedly earning as an actor these days.... And if you're a single parent within a low income bracket, you just might be missing out on an earned tax credit. That's according to IRS officials who are concerned that some working single parents are filing incorrectly as single taxpayers and not as "heads of households." A change in status, if applicable, could result in a credit of up to $953 in 1990. (Single tax-payers are not eligible for the credit). At any rate, the IRS has launched a study into the matter, after it was brought to their attention that some lower income single mothers, were missing out on the credit. In the meantime, if you have any questions, contact your nearest IRS office.

The Trouble With FSBOS

Selling your home without the help of a real estate professional might look good on the surface - after all, you could save the cost of a commission. In reality however, it could very well end up costing you much more than the commission you thought you were saving. May I suggest you ask yourself some important questions before deciding to "go it alone."

Are you aware of the legal requirements connected with selling a home in today's market? Will you know what to do if the buyer demands recession of the sale or cancellation of the deal? Do you know how to protect yourself in terms of warranties and disclosures? If not, you could find yourself in trouble.

Are you prepared to negotiate with buyers? Remember that buyers are adversaries with goals directly opposite those of the seller. While you want to keep the price up, they want to get the price down. While you may want to take everything with you, they may want you to throw in the refrigerator, curtains, and furniture.

Are you willing to give up your evening and weekends waiting for buyers to call or drop by? Every time an interested party comes by, you'll have to show them the house. It doesn't matter if you're not awake yet, a family member isn't well, or the house is cluttered. In the buyer's mind, there are plenty of houses to see and plenty of real estate agents to show them. If you're not prepared to show your home at their convenience, they'll probably just look elsewhere. In addition, when you're showing your home yourself, you have of knowing if lookers are really prospective buyers until they're actually inside your home.

Can you answer their financing question? Most home buyers know little about financing a home and will expect the real estate agent, or you, to help them. If you can't, the sale may be lost.

Is the market hot, warm, or cold? In warm or cold markets, buyers tend to be particularly finicky. They want to find the perfect home at the perfect price, with a minimum of effort and stress on their part.

A real estate professional, should make sure your home is shown at your convenience and only to qualified buyers. Also can handle negotiations so that both parties are satisfied with the terms of the sale and make sure all necessary disclaimers and warranties are made and that your sale complies with the legal requirements in your area.

Balloons-N-Gift Shop Celebrates Grand Opening In San Bernardino

SDB Balloons-N-Gifts, Forever Flowers by Rita and Fenix Systems, a computer sales, and repair business opened November 2, and 3, 1990, in an incubator located at 416 N. H Street in Suite 3.

SDB is an offshoot from An Evening Affair, said its owner Sharon Boone. Boone was in the business of weddings from the rental of gowns to coordinating the wedding. She still does this and still has An Evening Affair, however her new business allows her to reach a wider base of people including businesses, who are looking for unique gifts.

One of the hottest gift ideas is the placing of almost any gift inside of a balloon. She also has gift baskets, with any theme, birthdays, baby showers, weddings, to include fruit and gifts.

Forever Flowers by Rita, is owned by Rita Best. Best is a first time business owner. Her business came from her hobby of floral design. As she showed her creations to family members and employees at Shay Convalescent Home, where she works as a nurse, and they encouraged her to sell them. She did. She began at Valley College's Market Night and met Boone. When she found out about the space available, she and Boone agreed, she then became the second business in the three person incubator. Best does silk flowers any color, any design. She also sells arts and craft items including ceramics.

Saul Silva, makes up the final business in the space. Originally from Mexico, he attends school and also holds down another job. His wife helps him in the business, he took his hobby, repairing electronic items, and started the business. He builds made to order computers, sells IBM compatible computers, services and repairs them and can network any system. Fenix Systems Unlimited, is truly unlimited in what they repair. He also repairs radios and VCRs.

Tramaine Hawkins Release's New Album

One way to rate a singer is through the goosebump test: does the voice raise the hair on the arm, bring tears to the eyes, or run a chill down the spine? Tramaine Hawkins passes this test with flying colors.

Since the world first discovered Tramaine in 1969 singing with the Edwin Hawkins Singers, this unique woman has enjoyed tremendous popularity with a string of best-selling albums and countless standing-room-only performances. Because of her innovative style, she has always sought to push the parameters of Gospel as far as she could. And when Tramaine connects with a live audience, it's an experience unlike any other. That's why Tramaine Hawkins Live is her most remarkable recording yet.

Surprisingly, Tramaine has never before released a live solo album. I'm glad I waited, she says. It was important to have a strong concept to carry through the project. That concept involved far more than merely planting herself and a choir in front of an audience. Tramaine envisioned a truly epic production.

Recorded this past spring in the Calvin Simmons Auditorium on her home turf of Oakland, CA, Tramaine was joined by a five-camera video crew, a sixty-voice choir, jazz and rock legends Carlos Santana, Stanley Turrentine, and Jimmy McGriff, dear friends like the Reverend Jesse Jackson, Danny Glover and MC Hammer, and nearly every aunt, uncle, parent, grandparent, child and cousin in her family. She intended to stage an event to remember.

Co-produced by Tramaine, Walter Hawkins and manager Lee Magid, the album is a sterling showcase of Tramaine's extraordinary voice and abundant spirit. As always, she relied on her keen instinct for bold and imaginative material in selecting the album's songs. They must first minister to me, she says. I have to feel I've experienced what the song says, that I'm living it as I sing it.

I was on stage for over three hours, she recalls, and anyone who knows me knows I give each song everything I have. By the last song I was physically drained, but I felt so rejuvenated by the love and support in that room, it absolutely lifted me to another level.

Of course, as a singer, Tramaine Hawkins has been lifting others up to new musical levels for over twenty years. Born in San Francisco and raised in Berkeley, Tramaine was raised in the music of the church from her earliest years. Her mother, Lois Davis, is a gospel singer in her own right, and Tramaine's grandfather, Bishop E.E. Cleveland, Pastor of Ephesians Church of God in Christ, is one of the East Bay's most respected clergymen.

At age ten, Tramaine recorded her first single, "He's All Right," with the Heavenly Tones, who were produced by the legendary Rev. James Cleveland. She left the Heavenly Tones at age 15, when the group accepted an offer to tour with Sly and the Family Stone. Instead, she chose to stay in school and remain strictly in Gospel, working next with Andrae Crouch.

Upon graduating high school in 1969, Tramaine joined the Edwin Hawkins Singers, which had made history with the first pop crossover Gospel hit, "O Happy Day," that introduced contemporary Gospel to much of the world. "That song opened a major door, recalls Tramaine. To be able to say that it was recorded in my grandfather's church gives me great pride. Also, knowing the song has been a source of encouragement and support through the years has been a real blessing."

The Edwin Hawkins Singers also established Tramaine as one of the finest young singers on the Gospel scene. Her richly expressive voice, touched many, and her trendsetting style, though controversial at times, kept Tramaine at the forefront of contemporary Gospel. As to her occasional blurring of the line between Gospel and pop, she says, "It has to do with my personality and my creativity. I'm not one to get stuck in a pattern. I'm always willing to try something different."

This approach can be heard in many of her albums. She cut several LPs with Walter Hawkins, the younger brother of Edwin, and later made her solo debut with Tramaine and Determined in the early 80s, which contained such hits as "How I Got Over, Goin' Up Yonder, and Changed." She also made Gospel history with the heralded "Love Alive" series.

I recorded "Love Alive" in my grandfather's church while carrying my daughter, says Tramaine. It was a very special time for me. In the mid-80s, she released a pair of acclaimed general market albums, "The Search Is Over" and "Freedom." The single, "Fall Down" was the first Gospel song to reach #1 on the dance charts, and stirred up a home's nest among many tradition-minded individuals. Said Tramaine of the controversy, "I never left Gospel music, and never will. No matter what I do, I always sing about the Lord. I know my heart is in the right place."

After signing with Sparrow Records in 1988, Tramaine released the Grammy nominated "The Joy That Floods My Soul," which contained the hits, "What Shall I Do?" and "Whenever You Call." The album remained on Billboard's Gospel charts for more than 70 weeks. She has also maintained a thriving side career as an actress, having appeared as Mary Magdalene in a production of "Jesus Christ Superstar," staged at Philadelphia's Lincoln Center, as well as a production of "God's Trombone," co-starring Ossie Davis. Among the many world-class halls she's performed in are New York's Radio City, the Apollo, Chicago's Aerie Crown, Philadelphia's Academy of Music, and the Dominion Theatre in London.

A call from the Rev. Jesse Jackson shortly after the taping of "Tramaine Hawkins Live!" opened the door for Tramaine to sing at the memorial service of the legendary Sammy Davis Jr. Her moving performance of "What Shall I Do" was seen around the world.

As Tramaine continues to receive offers to perform internationally, she remains grounded in her faith to the One that bestowed such talent and opportunities to her. "There's no longevity in fame," she says. "People need to realize their reason for being. God has called me to do what I'm doing, and that's far more important than fame or fortune."

Meanwhile, with the album and full-length concert video of "Tramaine Hawkins Live!" ready for unveiling, Tramaine is facing a very busy calendar. Yet the effort will be well worth it, because with this album, Tramaine has pleased her toughest critic of all: herself. "I have always been very critical of my own work," says the singer. "But every time I listen to this album, I say, 'Who is that girl?' I actually get goosebumps." And that says it all.

Questions And Answers

by Reggie Woods

ARE THERE DIFFERENT LEVELS IN HEAVEN?

QUESTION : Dear Pastor Woods, Are there different levels in heaven? If so, are they determined by works, faith, tithes, or what?

Y.R., San Bernardino, CA

ANSWER: Heaven is the abode of God. The scriptures use the term "heaven" in two ways: one, heaven describing the abode of God, and two, heaven describing the atmosphere above the earth. I believe you are interested in the heaven where God abides.

There is no scriptural support that indicates that we will be placed in heaven at different levels. Of course, in heaven you have Jesus sitting at the right hand of God (Colossians 3:1), there are twenty-four elders that are sitting around the throne of God (Revelation 4), there is an innumerable host of angels that surround the throne of God (Revelation 5) and then you will see the saints of God dwell with God. You must remember that our ultimate destination is the new Jerusalem, the City of God (Revelation 21) that will replace the present heaven and earth. The qualifications to enter the heavenly city is cited by Jesus Himself "Blessed are they that do His commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city" (Revelation 22:14).

Finally, the Bible does speak of a reward system in heaven. The exact system of this rewarding is not fully revealed to us. We do, however, know that all of our works will be judged and then we will be rewarded accordingly: "Every man's work shall be made manifest. For the day shall Declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is. If any man's word abide which he hath built thereupon, the shall receive a reward. If any man's word shall be burned, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yes so as by fire." (1st Corinthians 3:13-15). If you have a question that you would like answered, write: Pastor Reginald Woods, Life Changing Ministries, P.O. Box 449, San Bernardino, CA 92402.

St. Mark To Celebrate 62nd Anniversary

The St. Mark Missionary Baptist Church will be celebrating the church's 62nd church anniversary, Sunday, November 25, 1990.

The entire day will be devoted to welcoming back former members, and honoring those members who have devoted and committed time and effort to the support of the church's growth of the last 62 years.

On Saturday, November 24, 1990, there will be a pre-musical to also celebrate the anniversary. Several local churches will be invited to participate along with special guests.

The special guest minister will be Pastor Welton Jefferson, of the Mt. Zion Missionary Baptist Church of Eloy, Arizona.

Pastor Jefferson calls St. Mark his home church, has he was associate minister here before he was called to pastor in Arizona. He was the minister assigned to the youth department, under the direction of the late Freeman R. Williams, he will bring the message for the afternoon program scheduled for Sunday, November 25, 1990.

We ask any former members to please come back and celebrate this joyous event with us. The church is located at 259 East Central Ave. in San Bernardino. Our Pastor, Percy Harper welcomes all visitors also to come and worship with us. For more information, please contact the church, at (714) 885-2919.

Thanksgiving Eve Service To Be Held in San Bernardino

The Eve of Thanksgiving Service of the greater San Bernardino area will be held on Wednesday, November 21 at 7:30 p.m. This will be the 12th annual ecumenical service. Established in 1979 at the suggestion of the visiting Bishop Anthony of the Eastern Orthodox Church this annual event is hosted by various congregations in the area. This year it will be hosted by Congregation Emanuel which is in the midst of commemorating its Centennial year.

The service is sponsored by the San Bernardino Clergy Association and is open to the entire community.

The service brings together the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish religious leadership of the area. Brief reflections on the meaning of Thanksgiving will be offered by seven leading members of the clergy and music will be provided by a combined choir made up of singers from the various congregations of the area. The hour of worship is a dramatic witness to the spirit of harmony and cooperation which prevails among the San Bernardino religious community.

Special greetings will be extended by W. R. "Bob" Holcomb, mayor of the City of San Bernardino.

Congregation Emanuel is located at 3512 North E Street in San Bernardino. The Sisterhood of the congregation will host a reception following the service.

An offering will be taken at the service to help provide food for the hungry of the area.

All are invited to attend and participate.

Citrus Valley District Ushers News

by Gladys Searcy

The School of Ushering of the Citrus Valley District Ushers wish to invite all friends of the ushers in a Pre-Thanksgiving Program "Thanking God For Enabling Themselves To Study and Better Qualify Themselves to Serve in Church in the Proper way." Mrs. Ethel McGee of New Hope Baptist Church and District Chairperson of the School of Ushering announced at the monthly District Meeting on the second Monday night, that the program will begin at 7:00 P.M. on Friday November 16 and is being held at St. Mark Baptist Church, 24039 Central Ave., San Bernardino. The guest speaker for this program is Rev. Alvin Hill of New Hope Baptist Church. Certificates of graduation will be presented, to the ushers completing the prescribed number of hours of training, by the State President Mr. Johnnie Creighton.

Mrs. Ann Johnson of St. Paul AME Church and Chairperson of the District Scholarship Committee invites everyone to attend the District's Georgia Mae Ramsey Scholarship Luncheon at 1:00 P.M. on Saturday November 17 also at St. Mark Baptist Church. Guests are encouraged to wear hats. Prizes will be given for the oldest hat, the most unusual hat, and the most elegant hat. So ladies come out wearing your hats. The theme for this affair is "Honoring our past investing in our future. Donations of $6.00 for this program will be used to give a Scholarship to three youth or Junior usher, a high school senior with the highest grade point average.

The guest speaker for this occasion is Ms. Elois Brooks, Principal of Sierra Middle School of Riverside, Calif. Following the delicious Salad Luncheon and judging of hats, remarks will be brought to us by the District President Mr. Claude L. Giles and State President Mr. Johnnie Creighton.

Stephen King Hits Again With IT FUTURE: 1990s

No one is better able to paint the picture of ultimate evil than best-selling author Stephen King, who, for years, has terrorized literary and movie audiences with his special brand of spine-tingling, supernatural fiction. With "Stephen King's IT," the master's masterpiece comes to life as a small town is plagued by a series of mysterious child disappearances. When a rag-tag group of seven misfits band together to destroy the evil force living behind the facade of a children's clown, they vow to bane it together once more, should it ever return. Now, 30 years later, "IT" has indeed returned, bringing with it a new wave of terror and destruction. These seven childhood friends must reunite to fulfill a 30-year-old promise, and in so doing, face once again their greatest personal fears.

"Stephen King's IT," a four-hour mini-series, will air in two parts on the ABC Television Network, beginning on Sunday, November 18 (9:00-11:00 PM) and concluding on Tuesday November 20 (9:00-11:00 PM). "Stephen King's IT" stars Harry Anderson, Dennis Christopher, Olivia Hussey, Richard Masur, Annette O'Toole, Tim Reid, John Ritter and Richard Thomas, with a special guest appearance by Tim Curry as Pennywise the Clown.

Derry, Maine is a typical New England small town, and the perfect place to raise a family. However, as a new decade, the nineties, is just beginning, an ominous force seems to hold the town in its grip. The senseless murder of a small girl is the latest in a series of unexplained child killings that are of particular concern to town librarian

The Lucky Seven- (Clockwise from left): Marlon Taylor as Young Mike, Brandon Chase as young Ben, Ben Heller as young Stan, Seth Green as young Stan, Seth Green as young Richie, Adam Faraizl as young Eddie, Emily Perkins as young Beverly and Johnathan Brandis as young Bill

Mike Hanlon (Tim Reid). He's faced this kind of evil before, and knows it to be an almost unstoppable inhuman force. He also knows what he must do, and begins locating and calling his boyhood chums with the dreadful news—"IT's" back.

As Mike contacts each of his former pals, we learn, through a series of flashbacks, how each of them confronted their most horrible personal fears when they encountered Pennywise the Clown thirty years earlier. These fears are deeply rooted, and facing Pennywise once again means not only facing each other, but once again their most dreaded personal anxieties. Now, each member of the 'Losers' Club,' as the group was once known, must decide whether or not to keep his Childhood promise and return to Derry to face this horrific embodiment of evil, risking his own life in the process. Much is at stake here, as each member of the original group has gone on to lead successful and productive lives.

In the 1990s, the discovery of True African history and culture, will become the number one issue among African American youth. This will continue to affect the social order on all levels of thought in America. As African American youth learn more about their true history and culture, their positive self esteem will gradually increase, and they will strive to attain greater prosperity and success in the economic, social, and cultural environment.

We will continue to see the further breakdown of America's public education system, leading to a total restructuring process in some areas. The growing controversy pertaining to the omission of True African history from history books in American schools will continue to escalate. The very low self esteem of many African Americans, is a direct result of being told a countless number of times, that their ancestors never made a significant contribution to the positive advancement of world culture. This misinformation has been perpetuated by the American media, as well as through the American education system, since African Americans were brought to America as slaves by Europeans.

Art Censorship, is also becoming one of the most controversial economic and social issues of the 1991's in America. George Orwell, in his haunting book "1984", wrote about the freedom of expression and artistic creativity of American citizens being threatened going into the twenty first century. One of the code phrases for this alleged censorship movement, is "Big Brother".

An increasing number of politicians and law enforcement officials across America, are taking it upon themselves to decide what books should be read in public schools, what recorded music should be sold in retail stores, and what paintings should be exhibited in public places. The individuals and groups attempting to do this are being referred to by some, as the "Thought Police".

The alternative media will continue to attract a larger audience, while the mainstream media becomes more homogenized and bland in their reporting of current event's the alternative media is providing their audience with a deeper insight of what is really taking place in the social, economic, and cultural environment. Those in media ownership and management positions who choose to "play it safe", will find themselves being left behind in the 1990s. Because of this trend among mainstream media conglomerates, they are losing an increasing number of talented journalists to the alternative media. The competition between the mainstream and alternative media will become even more fierce throughout the 1990s, and into the twenty first century.

Rap music, will continue to increase in worldwide popularity. This musical and cultural phenomenon, originating in African American urban areas, is now being embraced the most popular music among the youth in Japan, and its popularity is also increasing throughout European and Third World countries. Some Rap Artists will continue to be singled out because of the lyric content in their songs. Some say that the attempted censorship of Rap music, is convert racism in disguise against in disguise against the growing success of African American youth, also violating their constitutional right of the Freedom of expression, no matter how offensive it may be to some.

From another perspective in the Rap musci culture, there is an increasing number of Rap Artist using Rap, to convey positive messages to their listeners. Some of these Rappers are also using Rap to educate African American youth about their true cultural heritage and history, dating back to the great ancient city of kem (Egypt) in the Nile valley in Africa.

Maxi Priest Is A Bona Fide Hit

Maxi Priest's debut single, "Close To You," from his new album Bonafide is pulling off the crossover feat of the year. It is currently generating massive radio air play around the country and is at the top of Billboard's r&b and pop music charts.

Now in 1990, Maxi Priest returns with his latest album on Charism Records. Working with a host of powerful producers, including Grammy-award winners Jazzie B and Nelle Hooper (the creative forces behind Soul II Soul) and Jamaican producers Geoffrey Chung and Sly Dunbar, Maxi has delivered his finest work to date, the songs on Bonafide prove that Priest is equally at home with tender, emotive ballads like "Space in My Heart," gospel-tingled anthems like "Prayer for the World," and exciting dance tracks such as "Never Did Say Good-bye," as he is with infectious reggae/r&b/pop raps like his current hit single, "Close to You."

Bonafide is proof positive that Maxi Priest is at the forefront of a generation of fresh, young artist who have reinvested reggae music with new life adding an r&b and pop sensibility that exudes universal appeal.

Fuel Monday Night Football Fans With Great Tasting Finger Foods

Monday night football fare, at its very best, is light, great-tasting, fuss-free to fix and easy to eat in front of the television set. Serve-yourself "finger foods" prepared well in advance of kickoff are a winning game plan for fans who don't want to miss a minute of the action.

Next game night, keep armchair quarterbacks cheering with First Down Drumsticks, a light, full-flavored main dish that elevates everyday chicken legs to superstar status. Basted and baked with a blend of honey, soy sauce and ginger, the spicy/sweet drumsticks rely on mild, medium or hot PACE® picante sauce for their garden-fresh flavor and tongue-tingling jalapeno "heat." Weighing in at only about 100 calories per drumstick, these tasty treats are ideal for fitness-conscious fans and calorie counters, too. Serve them hot or chilled with a loaf of crusty bread and a plate of colorful cut-up vegetables and the meal's complete in no time.

For additional recipes with the rich, full flavors that make healthy eating easy, write for "PACE® Picante Sauce Light & Healthy Recipes," a colorful collection of great-tasting, easy-to-prepare recipes and serving suggestions. First Down Drumsticks

3/4 cup PACE® picante sauce 1/2 to 1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger, as desired
1/4 cup honey
1 tablespoon soy sauce 12 chicken legs, skin removed

Combine picante sauce, honey, soy sauce and ginger in small saucepan; bring to a boil. Reduce heat; simmer 10 minutes. Place chicken in greased shallow baking pan; brush with half of picante sauce mixture. Bake at 350°F for 20 minutes. Turn; brush with remaining picante sauce mixture. Continue baking 20 minutes or until tender. Serve warm or chilled with additional picante sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

American Cuisine Comes Back

After decades of experimenting with cuisines from all over the world, Americans are looking to their own regional specialties and food traditions with new appreciation. Restaurants known for their innovative menus and creative chefs are now including American specialty dishes on their upscale menus.

The Frozen Vegetable Pie Supreme is a good example of the kind of old-fashioned American dish which has made a contemporary comeback. A mixture of frozen vegetables are the chef's choice to add fresh flavor to this pie's creamy filling. Because frozen vegetables are flash frozen within hours of being harvested, they are often more flavorful than fresh produce.

So-called fresh produce is often harvested early and allowed to ripen off the vine as it travels to market—which sometimes takes several weeks. As vegetables age between vine and table, their natural sweetness turns to starch and some of the nutrients are lost, making them less flavorful and not nearly as nutritious. Frozen vegetables are individually quick frozen at the peak of their season, locking in flavor and nutrients.

There are a wide variety of frozen vegetables to choose from like a Tuscan blend, a Mexicali mix, a Southern style vegetable medley or stewed vegetables. Or, you might want to create a frozen vegetable mixture of your own with some of the new exotic varieties like frozen artichoke hearts, fardhook lima beans or designer baby carrots. Experiment with different frozen vegetable mixtures to add a new twist to the pie each time you make it.

Best of all, culinary experts find frozen vegetables a time-saving convenience which does not compromise their cooking. Frozen vegetables eliminate the need for peeling, chopping and rinsing—and they are also economical.

For the free brochure, "Frozen Vegetables—Freshness In A Snap," just send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to The Frozen Vegetable Council, 1633 Broadway, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10019. Try this quick and easy Frozen Vegetable Supreme Pie for a truly American taste experience.

CHICKEN VEGETABLE PIE SUPREME

- 1 package (10 oz.) or 2 1/2 cups frozen mixed vegetables or frozen vegetable combination of your choice
- 1/2 cup frozen chopped onions
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 can (14 1/2 oz.) or 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1/2 teaspoon marjoram or oregano, crushed
- Dash each ground nutmeg and pepper
- 2 cups (about 3/4 lb.) cubed, cooked chicken
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry
- Pastry for 2-crust (9-inch) pie
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 tablespoon water

Saute vegetables and onions in butter about 3 minutes. Gradually stir in flour. Lower heat, cook and stir 1 minute. Add chicken broth and spices. Cook and stir until mixture thickens. Add chicken and sherry and heat thoroughly. Spoon into 4 (1 1/2 cups) individual oven-safe baking dishes. Roll pie crust into 4 pieces 1-inch larger than the dish; place over chicken mixture. Crimp edges and cut vents in crusts. Beat egg yolk and water; brush over crust. Bake at 425°F. 20 minutes or until crust is browned. Cook 5 to 10 minutes before serving. Makes 4 servings.

The Microwave Way

Pumpkin is commonly associated with autumn and harvest-time, with popular usage as a candle-lit decoration or as a pie ingredient. What is less well known is that pumpkin is believed to have originated in North America and that this nutritious vegetable became a staple in the diets of the early colonists.

Colonial Pumpkin Spice Cake is a delicious way to celebrate our heritage from Columbus Day to Thanksgiving. Rather than using the colonial preparation method of preparing pumpkin recipes over an open fire, we have the space-age technology of the microwave oven and a "baking" time of only 15 minutes! Whirlpool Corporation home economists suggest serving this hearty pumpkin spice cake warm, but it is also delicious cooled.

COLONIAL PUMPKIN SPICE CAKE
(12 servings)

1 cup whole wheat flour
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
3/4 cup canned, solid pack pumpkin*
1/2 cup buttermilk
6 tablespoons margarine, softened
3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/4 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

1. Stir together whole wheat flour, all-purpose flour, soda, salt and spice; set aside. Stir together pumpkin and buttermilk; set aside.

2. Beat margarine, sugars and eggs until smooth and creamy. Add pumpkin mixture alternately with flour mixture, mixing well. Stir in 1/4 cup of the walnuts.

3. Grease (not oil) 1 1/2-quart round glass casserole. Sprinkle remaining 1/4 cup walnuts in bottom of casserole. Spread batter over nuts.

4. Microcook at MEDIUM (50%) for 13 minutes, rotating casserole twice during cooking. Then microcook at HIGH (100%) for 2 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out dry. Let stand 10 minutes. Invert onto serving plate. Serve warm or cooled with whipped topping.

*NOTE: Remaining canned pumpkin may be frozen for later use. When combining ingredients, mixture may appear slightly curdled.

Chicken Soup Goes South of the Border

Here's a shortcut recipe for a spicy version of chicken noodle soup that's a meal in a bowl. Whether you're preparing a Tex-Mex fiesta for friends or satisfying your family, they're sure to enjoy the unexpected addition of tortilla chips, cheese, and chilies to the traditional chicken and noodles. This recipe is also chock full of delicious vegetables: corn, tomatoes, and green onions.

The base of this recipe is a packaged side dish such as Lipton® Noodles and Sauce — Chicken Flavor, which includes many of the spices that give this dish its balanced flavor. Just add garlic, chili powder and oregano for that Tex-Mex touch. Serve Chicken Noodle Tortilla Soup with corn bread and Mexican beer for a quick and delicious Tex-Mex meal.

- Chicken Noodle Tortilla Soup
- 2 tablespoons oil
3/4 pound boneless skinless chicken breasts, cut into bite-size pieces
1/2 cup sliced green onions
1 1/2 teaspoons chili powder
1/2 teaspoon oregano leaves
5 cups water
1 can (14 1/2 oz.) whole peeled tomatoes, undrained and chopped
1 package Lipton Noodles & Sauce — Chicken Flavor
1 can (4 oz.) chopped green chilies, undrained
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 can (7 oz.) whole kernel corn, drained
Tortilla chips, coarsely broken

1 cup shredded Cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese (about 4 oz.)

In 3-quart saucepan, heat oil and cook chicken, green onions, chili powder and oregano over medium-high heat, stirring frequently, until chicken is done; remove and set aside. Into saucepan, add water and tomatoes; bring to a boil. Stir in noodles & chicken flavor sauce, chilies and garlic powder. Continue boiling over medium heat, stirring occasionally, 10 minutes or until noodles are tender. Just before serving, stir in corn and chicken mixture; heat through. To serve, top with tortilla chips and cheese. Makes about 6 (1 3/4-cup) servings.

Fast and Fancy Fettuccine

With Sweet Roasted Red Pepper Sauce

Top your summer pasta dishes with a creamy blend of roasted red peppers and herbs. This recipe for "Fettuccine with Roasted Red Pepper Sauce" can be made from scratch or whipped together in minutes in the blender using prepared roasted red peppers. This is a great way to keep your kitchen (and yourself!) cool despite the summer heat.

If you choose to roast your own peppers, they can be prepared in the oven, on the broiler rack or on the grill. Whichever you choose, this simple and flexible dish will provide a change-of-pace meal with pizzazz that's fast and fancy.

Sweet red peppers and cream are complemented by the savory herbs and spices in Wish-Bone Italian Dressing. All the spices required except for the basil leaves are already included in the dressing. Just add salt and pepper to taste and grated Parmesan cheese for a piquant dish that's elegant enough to

Fettuccine with Roasted Red Pepper Sauce

3 large red peppers*
1/2 cup whipping or heavy cream
1/4 cup Wish-Bone Italian Dressing
2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil leaves
Salt and pepper to taste
1 package fettuccine or medium egg noodles, cooked and drained
Grated Parmesan cheese

In large aluminum-foil-lined baking pan or on broiler rack, place peppers. Broil, turning occasionally, 20 minutes or until peppers turn almost completely black. Immediately place in paper bag; close bag and let cool about 30 minutes. Under cold running water, peel off skin, then remove stems and seeds.

In food processor or blender, process prepared peppers, cream, Italian dressing, basil, salt and pepper until blended. Toss with hot fettuccine and serve with cheese. Makes about 4 main-dish servings.

*Substitution: Use 2 cups drained roasted red peppers.
Substitution: Use 2 teaspoons dried basil leaves.

Also terrific with Wish-Bone Robusto Italian, Blended Italian, Herbal Italian, Lite Italian or Classic Dijon Vinaigrette Dressing.

Baking for the Holidays

Crisp days signal the beginning of the holiday season. The weeks ahead promise cozy family gatherings complemented with delicious desserts.

The flavor and aroma of homemade cakes are a wonderful way to welcome the holidays. The care you put into baking a special cake adds to the celebration of this glorious season.

"Quality ingredients are essential to the flavor and appearance of homemade cakes," says Marcia Copeland, director of the Betty Crocker kitchens.

"For added confidence, make sure your baking powder and spices are fresh. And rely on products specifically designed for cake baking, such as Softasilk cake flour. Its finely milled texture creates delicate cakes with melt-in-your-mouth tenderness.

Let this moist Pumpkin Cake Roll, with a tasty frozen yogurt filling take center stage on your holiday table. Serve it elegantly on your favorite platter. Garnish the cake with whole walnuts and fresh ivy.

For year-round celebrations, write for your copy of the Softasilk "Cakes for All Occasions" booklet. Send 75 cents for postage and handling to: Cakes, P.O. Box 5064, Minneapolis, MN 55460.

This holiday season let your table sparkle with this luscious dessert that combines pumpkin, a traditional holiday favorite, with a frozen yogurt filling.

- Pumpkin Cake Roll With Frozen Yogurt Filling
- 3 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
2/3 cup canned pumpkin
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup Softasilk cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped nuts, if desired
Powdered sugar
1 pint vanilla frozen yogurt, softened slightly
1 pint orange frozen yogurt, softened slightly

Heat oven to 375°. Line jelly roll pan, 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1 inch, with aluminum foil or waxed paper; generously grease. Beat eggs in small bowl on high speed about 5 minutes or until very thick and lemon colored. Pour eggs into large bowl. Gradually beat in granulated sugar. Beat in pumpkin and lemon juice on low speed. Mix flour, baking powder, cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg and salt; gradually stir in by hand just until batter is smooth. Pour into pan, spreading batter into corners. Sprinkle with nuts.

Bake 12 to 15 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Immediately loosen cake from edges of pan; invert onto towel sprinkled with powdered sugar. Carefully remove foil; trim off stiff edges of cake if necessary. While hot, carefully roll cake and towel from narrow end. Cool on wire rack at least 1 hour.

Unroll cake. Beginning at narrow end, spread about half of the orange yogurt on one-fourth of the cake and about half of the vanilla yogurt on the next one-fourth of the cake. Repeat with remaining yogurt to cover remaining cake. Roll up carefully (remove towel). Place cake, seam side down, on piece of aluminum foil. Wrap securely in foil; freeze. Remove from freezer about 15 minutes before serving. 10 to 12 servings.

High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): Heat oven to 400°. Decrease granulated sugar to 3/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons and baking powder to 3/4 teaspoon. Beat eggs about 3 minutes or until foamy.

Hal Willams Joins The Consortium of Concerned Voters in Fundraiser

Even though Ralph Waite candidate for the 37th Congressional District was a long shot for the seat held by Al McCandless, he didn't give up and came within 5 percentage points of taking the seat from him. In a district, considered safe by the National Republican party, Waite was able, with the help from a few friends from Hollywood, and about 500 grassroots workers to almost win the seat.

One of his staunch supporters was in town to help with the tough campaign three days before the election. It was the final in a series of fundraisers, attended, by Hal Willams.

The reception was held by the Consortium of Concerned Voters, at the home of Sylvia Martin, in Riverside.

After an introduction by Ted Regans, Williams spoke about the candidate, his aspirations, his experience, his commitment and his accountability.

Williams, who worked with Waite on the television series the Waltons, says he is grateful to the man who stood up for what was right. He stood up to people in Hollywood who can make or break an actor and he did it for the African Americans on the show.

Waite told the crowd there is much that separates him from McCandless.

"McCandless has never done anything to benefit Black people." The minister said his cause is one that God approves of and his strong belief in God was evident to the audience.

Sylvia Martin, president of the organization was pleased with the turnout, pleased with the candidate, and happy, Hal Williams, television star, cared enough to come out and support a candidate who would make life better for African Americans in the 37th District. Two years will be here before you know it and another election will see Waite the winner.

Cajon High Principal Plans Positive Steps In Aftermath of Student Unrest

Cajon High School principal, Judy Browne, told parents that the school does plan to take proactive steps to ensure the safety of all students and to discover ways to avoid future clashes between groups of students. Browne spoke to about 250 parents attending a meeting held recently in the school gym to discuss recent fights between Black and Hispanic students.

She said she shared their concerns and, like them, wanted the school to return to normal so that the outstanding educational programs could continue. "We want our students back in school. It is safe and we intend to take the necessary steps to see that it remains safe."

Browne outlined several steps and said she and her administration have devised to tackle the problems. These steps involved meeting with the elected student body leadership, staff and student peer counselor cultural workshops, diversity training for staff with the assistance of Cal State San Bernardino, and developing a Parent-Staff Advisory Committee.

The training will focus on strategies for managing tension based on ethnic, racial or religious differences. Meetings have been held and will be ongoing to get suggestions on what staff can do to help.

She reiterated that so far the school's investigations have not shown the problem to have been race related although the fights were between Blacks and Hispanics. Nor, she said, has there been shown to be any gang connection. "We want to get to the bottom of the problem; we want to find out just what caused it."

Of the 28 students who were suspended in the aftermath of the fights, she said six were readmitted on October 31, six were re-admitted on November 1, four re-admitted November 6, one had transferred at the Adult Education Program, three have been recommended for expulsion, and eight cases are pending meetings with the parents and receipt of police reports.

Browne said communication will be the key to solving the problems and that ongoing dialogue will be maintained with all groups.

Blacks Boycott Schools In Dade County Florida

By DEREK JOY

The real action was far removed from the streets surrounding the Dade County Schools Administration Building where throngs of African Americans gathered in a boycott.

It was election day when former U.S. Senator Lawton Chiles would unseat incumbent Governor Bob Martinez while South Florida Congressional seats were retained by incumbents E. Clay Shaw, Larry Smith, William Lehman, Ileana Ros-Lehtinen and Dante Fascell, respectively.

Meanwhile, boycott organizers who were primarily Black ministers, sought to redress the issue of Deputy Schools Superintendent Dr. Tee S. Greer was bypassed over the top job in favor of Octavio Visiedo, a Hispanic male with much less time in the system and who doesn't have a doctorate. Associate Superintendent Dr. Solomon Stinson was also bypassed.

But at the same time the Black ministers were touting the boycott to voice their displeasure over the choice of superintendents, they were also supporting passage of the one cent sales tax increase in Dade County. The penny sales tax increase failed by a wide margin.

Still, the boycott made a significant impact on the Dade Public School System in its entirety.

Counting the students in each of his first four classes at Edison Middle School, which numbered 31, Derek Latson, a seventh grader, said: "There hardly people in school today. And the cafeteria had only about 50 students when its usually overcrowded."

Much of the boycott was centered around experience as a teacher for a civics lesson, according to some participants, who cited the civil rights marches and boycotts during the era of the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., non-violent protests against discrimination.

Discrimination was a crucial factor in the decision to organize the boycott as a result of having no less than two highly qualified African Americans twice passed over in the same year for the Dade Schools superintendency.

"I supported the boycott. I told my son and daughter-in-law to keep my grandchildren out of school. It's for them. They need to experience how to fight for their rights," said Rose

"But more than that they need to know that Dr. Greer was qualified for the job and didn't get it. Even though he had been interim superintendent twice and had done everything his superiors had asked of him," Jefferson continued.

"The boycott was symbolic. It was a show of unity," concluded Jefferson.

Nevertheless, others felt as though the boycott simply opened doors for people to take advantage of virtually any cause they support to stay home from school, take days off from work, or to boycott.

Yet few have denied that Greer deserved the superintendent's job after 31 years when Visiedo had only 17-years in the system and no doctorate. The same is true of Stinson, who has a doctorate and 30-years in the system.

We feed dreams

Every morning millions of children go to school on an empty stomach. They're more than just hungry. They're missing out on their chance to learn, to make their dreams come true.

Numerous studies have documented the vital link between good nutrition and a child's ability to learn. That's why Kraft General Foods supports organizations across the country that help meet the need. We're working to expand school breakfast and lunch programs, and to organize summer feeding programs to provide year-round nutrition.

We know the success of our children tomorrow depends on the dreams we feed today.

Child Watch

Parent Involvement Crucial To Learning

"Which square is different?" his mother asked, pointing to a row of shapes on a work sheet. Four-year-old Ray looked determined and scanned the choices.

"That one," he exclaimed, choosing the correct square. His mother Mary, beamed. She is helping him learn some new concepts before Ray returns to his preschool class at the local elementary school.

A few months ago, Mary would not have attempted to help Ray with his lessons. She is a single mother, raising children in a run-down housing development. Mary did not believe she had the ability or anything valuable to teach them. But recently, she received help from a special program that helped her build the skills and the confidence to actively participate in her children's studies.

HIPPY (Home Instruction Program for Preschool Youngsters) is a "parenting" program, but does more than give advice. Tutors teach parents how to stimulate their children's minds through a 30-week, step-by-step program. The program's school readiness initiative is aimed at educationally disadvantaged 4 and 5 year olds.

HIPPY began in Tulsa, Oklahoma in 1984, and now has 33 sites in 13 states, as well as sites in 23 countries.

The home-based program hires mothers from the community and trains them as tutors. The tutors are then sent to their neighbors' homes — mostly single-parent households — providing materials and guidance on how to work with their preschool children. Parents learn through role-play, then work directly with their children. They also have their progress charted during home visits.

Struggling parents, especially single-parent mothers who had negative educational experiences or dropped out of school, have low self-esteem like Mary did. They believe they cannot contribute, but want their children to do well and expect learning to take place in school.

"This program puts the parents back in the driver's seat," says a coordinator of an early-childhood program. The program provides the means for them to help their kids. HIPPY also provides opportunities for parents to meet other parents, to participate in impersonal development activities.

Ray and his mother have developed an active parent-child relationship that benefits them both, but is also essential for him to progress in school. She wants to give him all the support he needs.

Strengthening family rituals can benefit everyone: prayers if you are religious, and if not, regular family meals and gatherings. Parents must plan activities with their children, listen to them, and be moral examples for them. If we cut corners, they will too. If we lie, they will too.

Parental involvement is very important in developing our children's academic and social skills. Otherwise, too many children attend classes emotionally unprepared to interact, contribute, or learn.

Marla Gibbs Says: "Progress Is Always Being Made"

Marla Gibbs, the television actress and producer, urged participants at the 15th anniversary ceremonies of "The Skanner" newspaper, to remember that "Progress is always being made, even in the middle of chaos!"

In a well-received speech, Ms. Gibbs stressed that minorities build whatever is needed, using whatever resources they have, "To make our communities what we want them to be."

Ms. Gibbs said: "My quest is to rebuild the Los Angeles' Black community. That's what I am about."

The star of the popular television series, "227," acknowledged Los Angeles' major problems of drugs, street gangs and "13 and 14 year-old children having children."

She said: "These are our children. We must teach them and make certain that the schools teach them what they need to know to compete in this world."

The publisher of "The Skanner" newspaper, Bernie Foster, had especially wanted Ms. Gibbs to speak with the more than 600 guests gathered at the newly-built Portland Convention Center. "I knew of Ms. Gibbs' inspirational development efforts in Los Angeles and wanted my readers and supporters to hear about them also," Foster said.

The popular television series, "227," has been cancelled, Ms. Gibbs told the group, adding, that she's happy though that "227" ran for five full years. That was God's blessing and I thank him for it. Now I'm looking forward to whatever is coming — I know it will be a blessing."

A native of Chicago, Ms. Gibbs moved to Los Angeles in 1968, and appeared in numerous acting roles before joining "The Jeffersons" television series in 1975. For 11 seasons, her role in "The Jeffersons" as Florence, the maid, became an indelible part of television history.

In 1982 Ms. Gibbs founded the Crossroads Arts Academy, "a school for nurturing talent for young and old" in Los Angeles' inner city. The Academy has produced several highly acclaimed productions, including the play, "227," the theatrical precursor of the television series. Ms. Gibbs starred as a housewife on the series until it was cancelled earlier this year.

While the Crossroads Arts Academy teaches — and provides a forum for — persons involved in the entertainment field, Ms. Gibbs said the school also instructs students in how to earn a living within urban growth areas.

"We are training waiters and waitresses too, since the hotel industry is booming," she said.

"So many things can be done right where you are," Ms. Gibbs said, "We have the ability to rebuild our communities."

"The Skanner" presented its Corporate Involvement Award to Thomas Schropshire, retired Senior Vice President, Miller Brewing Company. Other

awards were presented for persons who have distinguished themselves in the areas of health, education, business, community affairs and youth programs.

A recent congratulatory letter from President Bush to Foster, and his wife, "The Skanner" editor, Bobbie Dore Foster, said: "I can well appreciate how much your publication has meant to the people of your community over the years. It has been the 'family album' and a link to the world, a record of happenings, great and small, that people care about and want to remember."

Giving Homage Where It Is Due: The Executive Leadership Council, a network of black executives, recently handed out their coveted "Heritage Award" to Naylor Fitzhugh, who is only the second black to earn an MBA at Harvard Business School. Ironically, Fitzhugh didn't get to use it until 1965 (32 years later), when he was hired by Pepsico and went on to lead the first corporate ad effort directed at black consumers. The 80-year old business pioneer was recognized for his "lifelong contributions to African-American business advancement."

Executive Sweet: Sylvia Rhone has been named as a CEO of East West America, a new division of Atlantic Records in New York City. With this appointment, Rhone becomes the first black woman to head a major record label. Formerly senior vice president/GM of Atlantic Records, she had been the highest-ranking female at Atlantic, and the highest-ranking black female in the record industry. "It would be nice to say that whether you're black or white or a man or a woman doesn't make a difference, but it does," says Rhone, who signed on with Atlantic in 1985 as director of national black music promotion. "I've worked in this business for 15 years, and I've had to work harder than my male counterparts, so it feels like it's a small victory."

Black Lawyers Get An Edge: The Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC), the nation's bailout agency, has extended a giant opportunity for minorities and women to get a much bigger share of their outside legal work, valued at $500 million annually. The program, which was developed in 1988, is affording minority-owned firms, the kinds of work they had been previously denied. The program is set up to counter the fact that minorities and women have made little progress among the country's top law firms. Congress added steam in the establishment of the program with the implementation of its 1988 bailout law, instructing the RTC to encourage minorities and women to bid for the agency's outside work. Additionally, the program is giving big white law firms a reason to recruit minority lawyers so that they too, can share in the bonanza. (However, to counter the hiring of "token blacks," the RTC requires proof that minorities and women are actually doing the work). Aside from fueling a recruitment strategy, the program is also encouraged by the number of big firms that are now copartners with minority firms to take part in the opportunity. Average contracts are estimated to be in the $2-3 million range (yearly).

Speaking of money... $20 - $25,000 weekly is what former rap star Will Smith of "The Fresh Prince of Bel Air" is reportedly earning as an actor these days.... And if you're a single parent within a low income bracket, you just might be missing out on an earned tax credit. That's according to IRS officials who are concerned that some working single parents are filing incorrectly as single taxpayers and not as "heads of households." A change in status, if applicable, could result in a credit of up to $953 in 1990. (Single tax-payers are not eligible for the credit). At any rate, the IRS has launched a study into the matter, after it was brought to their attention that some lower income single mothers, were missing out on the credit. In the meantime, if you have any questions, contact your nearest IRS office.

The Trouble With FSBOS

Selling your home without the help of a real estate professional might look good on the surface - after all, you could save the cost of a commission. In reality however, it could very well end up costing you much more than the commission you thought you were saving. May I suggest you ask yourself some important questions before deciding to "go it alone."

Are you aware of the legal requirements connected with selling a home in today's market? Will you know what to do if the buyer demands recession of the sale or cancellation of the deal? Do you know how to protect yourself in terms of warranties and disclosures? If not, you could find yourself in trouble.

Are you prepared to negotiate with buyers? Remember that buyers are adversaries with goals directly opposite those of the seller. While you want to keep the price up, they want to get the price down. While you may want to take everything with you, they may want you to throw in the refrigerator, curtains, and furniture.

Are you willing to give up your evening and weekends waiting for buyers to call or drop by? Every time an interested party comes by, you'll have to show them the house. It doesn't matter if you're not awake yet, a family member isn't well, or the house is cluttered. In the buyer's mind, there are plenty of houses to see and plenty of real estate agents to show them. If you're not prepared to show your home at their convenience, they'll probably just look elsewhere. In addition, when you're showing your home yourself, you have of knowing if lookers are really prospective buyers until they're actually inside your home.

Can you answer their financing question? Most home buyers know little about financing a home and will expect the real estate agent, or you, to help them. If you can't, the sale may be lost.

Is the market hot, warm, or cold? In warm or cold markets, buyers tend to be particularly finicky. They want to find the perfect home at the perfect price, with a minimum of effort and stress on their part.

A real estate professional, should make sure your home is shown at your convenience and only to qualified buyers. Also can handle negotiations so that both parties are satisfied with the terms of the sale and make sure all necessary disclaimers and warranties are made and that your sale complies with the legal requirements in your area.

Balloons-N-Gift Shop Celebrates Grand Opening In San Bernardino

SDB Balloons-N-Gifts, Forever Flowers by Rita and Fenix Systems, a computer sales, and repair business opened November 2, and 3, 1990, in an incubator located at 416 N. H Street in Suite 3.

SDB is an offshoot from An Evening Affair, said its owner Sharon Boone. Boone was in the business of weddings from the rental of gowns to coordinating the wedding. She still does this and still has An Evening Affair, however her new business allows her to reach a wider base of people including businesses, who are looking for unique gifts.

One of the hottest gift ideas is the placing of almost any gift inside of a balloon. She also has gift baskets, with any theme, birthdays, baby showers, weddings, to include fruit and gifts.

Forever Flowers by Rita, is owned by Rita Best. Best is a first time business owner. Her business came from her hobby of floral design. As she showed her creations to family members and employees at Shay Convalescent Home, where she works as a nurse, and they encouraged her to sell them. She did. She began at Valley College's Market Night and met Boone. When she found out about the space available, she and Boone agreed, she then became the second business in the three person incubator. Best does silk flowers any color, any design. She also sells arts and craft items including ceramics.

Saul Silva, makes up the final business in the space. Originally from Mexico, he attends school and also holds down another job. His wife helps him in the business, he took his hobby, repairing electronic items, and started the business. He builds made to order computers, sells IBM compatible computers, services and repairs them and can network any system. Fenix Systems Unlimited, is truly unlimited in what they repair. He also repairs radios and VCRs.

The ribbon cutting ceremony by the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce was held November 2.

Moreno Valley News

By Charles Ledbetter

Citizens Of Moreno Valley: Thank You for your support during the election November 6th, for the Moreno Valley School Board of Education. You can be sure that I will do all within my power to make sure every cent spent in this district will be used to keep Moreno Valley the top educational facility in America.

Thanks again for your confidence and your caring attitude.

(Charlie)

As We Live And Breathe: Often when a group of people get together to discuss proposed programs or problems, alot is left unsaid. Following a few questions will be addressed and discussed in a general manner as an attempt to bring about a social consciousness that will help us all realize the important of showing respect for each other, and to bring about the realization that we all need someone to lean on, or at least count on.

Each individual could ask themselves a number of questions when in doubt about how they stand with society. First pray, get right with GOD. Then, to yourself or a trusted friend ask these questions: 1. Am I doing the very best possible job I can to make my home, community and school a better place to live, love, work or get an education?; 2. Do I really like myself? It is not easy to respect and love another, if you do not love and respect yourself; 3. Do you respect all people, are you a bigot? Young people will follow your example and practice what they see you do. My happiness and success in life depends upon how I love and respect my fellowman. God is good.

One Person: One person can make a difference. One person can destroy the heart and mind of one child and many children. One person can open the hearts and minds of children, can instill a feeling of true worth and human dignity that will enable a child to surmont the tragedies of poverty, of prejudice, of futility. We need't go further than the nearest classroom to find a child who already knows he/she is nobody. Just one person can at least help him/her know that they are somebody. You are the person - in the classroom and at home. Together we can save our children.

At Your Service: We now have D & D meats in the Moreno Valley area, this is a business under the directions of a young Black man that features fresh cuts of quality meats. His shop is located at 3865 N. Perris Blvd. (Romano Expressway at Perris Blvd.)

Vanguard Traffic School is located at 24099 Postal Ave. Suite 205. This is the operation of Dennis Swain.

God is comfortable with families. He himself is our Father, and His Son Jesus Christ is our Brother. Everything about God is family-oriented, so it should come as no surprise that when a family gathers in prayer before Him, He readily takes His place among them.

Some Tips For A Safe Holiday Season

Holidays are a rich time of warmth and sharing—a time for celebration. But a skilled burglar, a swift pickpocket or a crafty con artist can quickly cool that warmth into some cold, hard realities.

Although the holidays are a time of excitement and activity, they are also the peak season for criminals who prey on unsuspecting victims.

What can you do to help insure that your holidays are safe and joyous? Here are some tips from ADT Security Systems, the world's leading supplier of security systems, to help you preserve good cheer and happiness throughout the New Year.

Shopping Sense

- Stay alert. During this fast-paced, "hustle-bustle" time of year, be extra cautious and alert to your surroundings. Take extra care to protect your wallet, pocketbook and belongings, especially in stores, crowds and while dining out.
- Shop before dark if possible. And if you plan to be out late, invite a friend along.
- Park your car in a well-lit parking lot or near street lights. Always roll up your windows tightly and lock your doors, even if you plan to be away only for a short while. Have your keys in hand when you return to the car and check the interior before getting in.

Happy Home Hints

• 'Tis the season for giving, but be wary of strangers at the door seeking charitable donations. Ask for identification and learn how the funds will be used. If you don't like what you hear, decline to give any donations. Save your generosity for an organization of your choice.

- Be extra cautious about locking doors and windows when you leave the house. If you go away for a few days, ADT suggests that you get an automatic timer for your lights and radio. Ask a trusted neighbor to keep an eye on your house and pick up your mail.
- If you have a Christmas tree, use only fire-resistant ornaments and make sure that last year's lights are still in proper working order. Never leave Christmas lights unattended.

WHAT TO TELL YOUR BROTHER-IN-LAW WHO INSISTS THE MONEY YOU GIVE TO UNITED WAY NEVER GETS TO THE PEOPLE WHO NEED IT.

You've heard them before. You'll hear them again.

The people who complain that "the trouble with the United Way is the money never gets to the people."

That, quite honestly, is hogwash.

That's because the United Way is run by volunteers who give their time and talent without pay.

Thanks to you, it works. For all of us. United Way
